Lawyers from Justice Holmes ' s day until today rally around the banner of his most famous quote, " The life of the law has not been logic: it has been experience. " . Supposedly, this phrase reminds judges and other lawmakers never to let the law lose touch with the needs of ordinary people. In historical context, however, " the life of the law " says nothing about how judges should decide cases.

A day in the life of a corporate lawyer - Legal Cheek

The life of the law has not been logic: it has been experience. The felt necessities of the time, the prevalent moral and political theories, intuitions of public policy, avowed or unconscious, even the prejudices which judges share with their fellow-men, have had a good deal more to do than the syllogism in determining the rules by which men should be governed.
